Dear Beach Cities Resident,

Here at Beach Cities Health District (BCHD), youth mental health has been one of the areas of focus for our services and programs for more than 10 years. We've prioritized elementary school-based programming like MindUP, an evidence-based program grounded in neuroscience, mindful awareness, positive psychology and social-emotional learning, and enlisted youth as part of our Youth Advisory Council, one of five workgroups in the Beach Cities Partnership for Youth Coalition, to act as ambassadors and raise awareness about some of the mental health issues their peers are facing.

Trend data from the 2022 California Healthy Kids Survey continues to show how students in the Beach Cities are struggling, with 37% of Beach Cities 11th graders reporting chronic sad or hopeless feelings and 18% of them reporting seriously considering attempting suicide within the past 12 months. The growing need for improving youth mental health was only exacerbated by the COVID-19 pandemic, so much so that in 2021, Dr. Vivek H. Murthy, Surgeon General of the United States, issued an advisory on protecting youth mental health.

Young people urgently need support and we at BCHD are ready to meet that need with the opening of allcove Beach Cities, a youth center offering mental and physical health services, education and employment assistance, peer and family support, and substance use prevention programs for young people ages 12-25 in the greater South Bay. allcove Beach Cities is designed with, by and for youth with the goal to reduce stigma, embrace mental wellness, increase community connection and provide access to culturally responsive services.

Through funding from the Mental Health Services Oversight and Accountability Commission and partnership with Stanford University's Center for Youth Mental Health and Wellbeing, we are excited and ready to open the doors to allcove Beach Cities this fall

In Health,

T-Pux

allcove Beach Cities

Addressing and supporting mental health from a young age is an important aspect of the allcove model. Focusing on young people ages 12-25, allcove Beach Cities offers services related to prevention, early intervention and engagement and support. "Providing mental health services to young people is critical, as untreated mental disorders can disrupt and impact emotional well-being and social development," says Dr. William Kim, Chief Medical Advisor for Beach Cities Health District. "Utilizing these services from an early age can help mold young people in our community into resilient, confident and well-rounded adults."

'Why allcove Beach Cities is important' in their own words...

Colin

"Our young adults and teens in our community are the future of the Beach Cities, so strengthening and building a stronger and more welcoming foundation and community in the Beach Cities will inevitably create a brighter future."

Chase

"allcove Beach Cities is needed just as a way to reduce the stigma around regularly using mental health services."

Jennalee

"A place where my peers or I can go to find assistance and support for our mental health problems in a way that is much more accessible and easy to access than going through the full mental health system."

Camille

"A place where people can progress and really learn. I think it is really going to become an integral part of the community, where people can really get the support and understand the people around them and themselves."

Mollie

"allcove Beach Cities will really create a safe place for everyone in the community to come to and get the resources they need whenever they are struggling."

John

"The basis of what we are doing is around mental health and what we can do to raise awareness around that concern and it's quickly identified and agreed upon that there needs to be more awareness and there needs to be more attention to detail on the consequences of what might happen if not treated."

Rani

"I am really excited to hear about something that is outside of school."

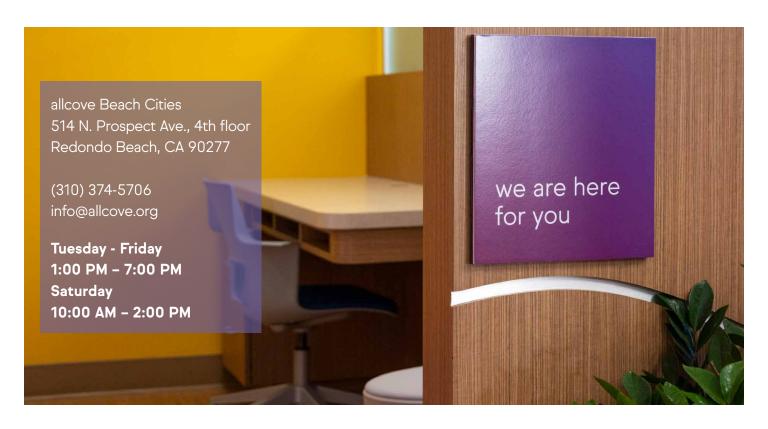

Marin

"That atmosphere itself is going to be super helpful for people because it makes it not as scary to go there for help."
